Capt. Prowse Arrives Back In Edmonton

where helped in the distribution. The pamphlets went to company commanders of Alberta units.

Capt. Prowse also believes that his supporters helped greatly in his election campaign through personal letters to other friends in the service suggesting they vote for Prowse.

He first learned he was leading through a report in Maple Leaf, the Canadian Army publication overseas, and later received a cablegram from Ottawa stating he had been elected and outlining procedure to take in returning to Canada.

HARD ON TROOPS

Capt. Prowse said the static war in Italy during the winter months was very trying on the troops as there was not the excitement and lift that comes from the triumph of steady advance.

He had a warning to the people of Edmonton and an earnest request.

"Don't allow yourselves to become too optimistic about a speedy end to the war and don't become too optimistic about the return of the boys from overseas. About the most disheartening thing that can happen to a soldier in the line is to receive a letter saying that it doesn't seem necessary to write so often or send more food parcels. Please keep those letters coming and keep sending those food parcels right up to the last day of the war because while there may seem to be a lot of boys coming back don't forget there are hundreds of thousands still over there."

He smiled a canny smile when asked if he cared to make a prediction as to the time of final victory over Germany.

"Field Marshal Montgomery makes mistakes in predicting the war's end. Who am I to stick my neck out?"

STORY GOES ROUND

There's a story going the rounds with the Canadians these days about a conversation between Canucks and the Nazis who are across a dyke from each other.

"Why don't you come over and surrender instead of keeping up this hopeless fight. You know you have lost the war anyway," the Canadian yells to his enemy.

"Sure, we know we have lost the war but if we surrender now you will take us to Canada or the United States and we'll probably be about four years getting home from prisoner-of-war camps."

"The way things are going now we just keep backing up a little all the time and when the war ends we'll be right home in Germany," the Nazi shouts back.

DARE NOT LEAVE

Capt. Prowse ventured the opinion that the Germans do not evaluate Italy because they dare not. All bridges across the Po have been destroyed by Allied air power. If they tried a retreat they would face final disaster.

Mrs. Prowse had journeyed to Calgary to meet her husband and one of the most joyous experiences of his return was seeing his little five-year-old daughter for the first time in four years at the C.P.R. station here.

The little girl was having a hard time trying to "place" her "new" daddy.

The officer M.L.A. planned to attend the Monday sitting of the legislative assembly. He is not certain just what he will do at the expiration of his special debarkation leave.

GREAT RESPONSIBILITY

"I feel a great responsibility to the men overseas. I know what they are thinking of. I know what they want," he said.

"They do not want to be killed but they do expect sympathetic understanding. They want an opportunity to make a decent living. They want jobs when they return and they are not at all sure they will be able to get them."

"They know that these problems have got to be solved," said Capt. Prowse.

He added that the men at the front had looked upon the Alberta government's service representative plan as a good sign.

Capt. Prowse had a warm look in his eyes when he observed:

"You could not serve with the men of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and see what they have gone through without being very proud. You would have the feeling that the best is certainly none too good for them at all times."

Nearly every Canadian who has served on the Italian front will never stop wondering why the Germans are making such a fight for Italy, Sgt. A. Sagan of the 2nd Field Bty, R.C.A. a veteran of five years service overseas, declared on his return here Saturday night.

Son of J. Sagan, 12007 102 street, Sgt. Sagan declared:

WEATHER IS TOUGH

"The weather is worse than the Germans for the most part. We all wonder why everybody don't just give the country back to the Italians for it would serve them right," he said with a laugh.

Several veterans of the original Loyal Edmonton Regiment were on Saturday's train.

These included Sgt. W. A. Polhill, R.R.4.

Slightly wounded during the Italian campaign he is back on rotation leave after more than five years over there. He left Italy on Feb. 27.

"Things were fairly quiet and static on the front at that time. We were hurling hand grenades at each other some of the time but there was no general action."

The weather was terrible and everybody is plenty fed up with life in Italy," the sergeant said.

Lt. Cpl. R. Roy, Waterways, who left Edmonton in the fall of 1939 with The Loyal Edmonton Regiment said with a wide grin:

"It's nice to know this rumor (about coming home) is really true."

Mines and shellfire caused The Loyal Edmonton a lot of casualties during the tough Italian campaign, he said.

said. United Kingdom airborne troops, resuming their advance, had gained two miles and tanks, guns and men poured across the river the British attack was gaining momentum with an armored break across the Westphalian plain an early prospect.

37-MILE ADVANCE

That represented an advance of 37 miles southeast from their last reported positions on the east bank of the Main river at Aschaffenburg, and 60 miles from besieged Frankfurt, whose fall was expected imminently.

At Wuerzburg, the Americans would be less than 60 miles northwest of the Nazi shrine city of Nuernberg and 228 miles southwest of Berlin.

Headquarters' spokesmen expressed confidence that the German army finally was being beaten to its knees in the great Rhine assault. Prime Minister Churchill and Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery were across the Rhine again today, and Montgomery said flatly that "the battle is going extremely well."

NAZIS FLEE SOUTH

Frankfurt, Germany's ninth city, was under siege from three sides. Heavily-censored field dispatches indicated the Germans were fleeing southeastward into the Bavarian mountains.

The United States First Army to the north swung down from its Remagen bridgehead against the flank of the Frankfurt defenders, pushing down the Rhine-Ruhr-Berlin super-highway to within 40 miles or less of Frankfurt.

Vanguard of the First Army along the Rhine's east bank were less than eight miles from a junction with Third Army troops south of Coblenz.

At the top of the Western Front, four Allied armies under Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery were striking through a 30-mile belt of the German defences along the northern flank of the burning Ruhr. Opposition at some points was fanatical and almost non-existent at others.

NINTH ARMY GAINS

U.S. Ninth Army forces drove 12 miles beyond the Rhine on the southern wing of the four-army assault line to capture Gahlen, 3 1/2 miles west of Dorsten and less than 15 miles due north of the Ruhr city of Essen, Germany's largest war production centre.

Front dispatches said the Americans had lost all contact with the fleeing enemy in that sector. Forward American elements were entering the suburbs of Duisburg and the fall of that great Ruhr city seemed imminent.

Further north, however, troops of the British Second, Canadian First and Allied First Airborne armies were battling for every foot of ground on the flat Westphalian plains northeast of Wesel.

GAIN MOMENTUM

Even in that sector, however, the advance gathered momentum as French armored and infantry reserves poured across the Rhine. Spearheads of the British, Canadian and airborne forces were reported only three miles from Isselburg, six miles north-west of Wesel, and seven miles west of the communications centre of Bocholt.

DEFENCES BREAKING

Along a front of 200 miles northward from Lt. Gen. Patton's U.S. Third Army line at Frankfurt the German defences were breaking under the terrific Allied ground and air assault.

Masses of German troops and armor were reported in flight southeastward in the path of the Third Army tank columns. Front reporters said the Americans everywhere were sweeping up thousands of dazed Nazi prisoners.

The German army appeared to have abandoned the battlefield on the southwestern road to Berlin.

MANY BRIDGEHEADS

The Third Army already had seven or more bridgeheads across the Rhine in the area immediately south of Coblenz and farther south between Mainz and Worms.

The Allied armies in the north beyond Wesel were barely 349 miles from the Berlin-bound Russian army on the Oder river east of the enemy capital, and Patton's troops beyond the Rhine were barely 290 miles from the Soviets.

In a great bid for one of the most decisive victories of the war, Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery's four armies were swiftly out-flanking the industrial Ruhr basin and

TO DEFEND VIENNA

Vienna was within 77 miles of the Russian armies and there was much evidence at hand that the Austrian capital was going to be as desperately defended as Berlin.

Meanwhile, Premier Stalin announced the fall of Heilingsberg, last big East Prussian stronghold southwest of Koenigsberg, as the Russians continued to mop up on their northern flank.

She Sets New Record

Champion Cow Honored

CALGARY, March 26.—(CP)—The most famous and probably one of the most valuable cows in the world, was honored here Saturday in her stall at Hays Dairy Farm at Turner Siding on Calgary's southern outskirts.

The cow is Alcarra Gerben, owned by the Hays Limited, and the cause for the celebration was her last milking in the year during which she is believed to have set a new world's record for butterfat production.

She is believed to have produced just under 1,410 pounds in the year that ended at 5 p.m. Saturday.

The record will not be official for several days yet.

She is the second cow in the world ever to have yielded more than 1,400 pounds in a year. The other, Carnation Ormsby Butter King, on the famous Carnation Milk Farm at Seattle, set a world record of 1,402 pounds in 1936, which stood until Saturday.

sweeping up thousands of demoralized, badly-beaten German captives.

10,000 PRISONERS

More than 10,000 Nazi prisoners already had been taken since Montgomery sent his 21st Army Group storming across the Rhine Friday night, and field dispatches said the toll was mounting hourly.

Almost 60 hours after the start of Montgomery's "win-the-war" offensive, the Germans had failed to throw in a single major counter-attack. Elements of one Panzer Grenadier division were reported in action on the British-held northern flank and another tank Division was reported moving into the threatened area under heavy aerial attack, but the rest of the enemy's reserves appeared to have been immobilized.

The big industrial city of Darmstadt, 15 miles south of Frankfurt, fell to Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's tanks almost without a struggle. The Americans stabbed northward for Frankfurt and sent a powerful armored wedge 2 1/2 miles northeast into Aschaffenburg, where they captured one of the Main river bridges intact.

CLOSEST TO BERLIN

Officially, Patton's men were closest to Berlin at Aschaffenburg, but they were believed to have plunged on across the Main at top speed to a point far closer to the capital.

Frankfurt itself was all but encircled and front dispatches said its fall was expected in a matter of hours.

Other Third Army forces were ramming eastward beyond the Rhine from several strong bridgeheads south of Coblenz, and Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U.S. First Army forces were advancing southeastward from their Remagen bridgehead toward an imminent junction with Patton's men.

GREAT AIR SUPPORT

Hundreds of RAF, Canadian and American war planes thundered out over the battlefield at first light this morning to carry the slaughter of the Wehrmacht's mobile forces into its fourth straight day, stoking hundreds of fires already burning over a 10,000-square-mile area of the Ruhr and Westphalian plain.

Six vital bridges across the Rhine just north and east of Wesel were captured intact by the airborne troops, including the British Sixth and American 17th Airborne divisions, opening the way for the British Second Army's armored divisions pouring across the Rhine.

The United Kingdom troops held a 15-mile stretch of the Rhine bank from Wesel northwestward beyond Rees, captured both anchor towns and rammed seven miles or more beyond the river against opposition described as far stiffer than that met by the American Ninth Army to the south.

Elements of the German 15th Panzer Grenadier Division were reported in action against the British and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian First Army units, including the Canadian Third Division, in the left end of the bridgehead, along with the Nazi 1st Paratroop, 84th Infantry and "Hamburg" divisions.

At least two pontoon bridges were operating over the Rhine near Wesel, feeding a steady flow of heavy guns, tanks and troops into the United Kingdom, Canadian and American fronts.

American Ninth Army troops attacking along the southern flank of Montgomery's assault line were reported advancing almost at will through completely-shattered German defences.

The Americans crossed the Lippe river seven miles beyond the Rhine, and pushing another three miles within about six miles of Dorsten and about 12 miles north-west of Essen, Germany's greatest arsenal city.

Demoralization and panic were reported spreading like a brush fire through the ranks of the German armies east of the Rhine under the crushing Allied ground and air assaults.

The entire west bank of the Rhine from Switzerland to Holland was reported officially to have been cleared of all but a few isolated pockets in the Karlsruhe corner. Those Nazi remnants were being mopped up rapidly by the U.S. Seventh Army moving up on the right flank of Patton's Third Army.

RESISTANCE WEAKENS

At least 300,000 Germans had been captured on both sides of the Rhine since March 1, and the ability of the remaining enemy forces to hold their thin lines west of Berlin was becoming questionable.

Allied staff officers asserted that German resistance already had begun to disintegrate along the vital northern flank of the Ruhr.

At least 20 enemy towns and villages were taken yesterday and early today by the four Allied armies on the Westphalian plain bordering the Ruhr. Returning fliers reported that the entire plain for more than 40 miles beyond the Rhine was a dead, smoldering wasteland, dotted at intervals with columns of German refugees fleeing eastward in terror.

Muenster itself, 40 miles beyond the most advanced Allied columns, was said to be in flames and there were few signs of enemy troop movements between that city and the Rhine.

Edmonton Girl Served Aboard Merchant Ships

Persia, Iraq, Colombo, North Africa, Egypt and India were all visited by Miss Benham.

The cargo ship on which she served was not equipped with azide or radar.

"That meant we had about 20 seconds' warning of a submarine attack, which isn't much good if there's a torpedo aimed in the right direction on the way. Our ship carried explosives and oil on many occasions. The ship was several times the commodore or lead ship of the convoy."

"This meant that we were the chief signal ship and would talk to the escorting corvettes all the time."

Whenever an air or undersea attack threatened, it was a case of battle stations for all hands, regardless of the hour of the day or night, she explained. During the 1943 trip through the Mediterranean that was just about all the time.

IN RADIO CABIN

"My station was of course the radio cabin and it made a person feel pretty sick to receive a message that 50 planes were diving on the convoy at a certain angle, because the radio operators had to sit right there all through the attack. Other crew members were able to shoot at the attackers. We couldn't."

On one occasion a German Junkers unloaded two torpedoes right at the Norwegian ship but good steeringman foiled the attempt. There were attacks every day and some of the ships were sunk.

Crossing the Indian ocean there were Japanese wolf packs both ahead and behind the freighter which sailed alone on that occasion.

In addition the ship had to battle the dread Indian Monsoon, or tropical hurricane. All the ship's lifeboats were stowed in the decks and were awash for eight days.

"Talk about rain. I saw rain move freight cars in the yards at an Indian ocean port," she said.

Taxation Rate Of 49.1-2 Mills Is Recommended

The report continues: "The composition of the tax rate suggested is—school purposes, 29 mills; general municipal purposes, 20.5 mills. Such a large increase in school expenditures draws attention to the small amount of grant in aid received by the Edmonton school boards."

"While the average percentage paid in the province to the various school boards is about 31.5 of expenditures, the grants for the public school board of this city has steadily declined until in 1944 it only represented 5.75 per cent."

"The advantages derived from the large increase in assessment for 1945 represents $160,639 of which $93,974 is absorbed by the school boards, leaving $66,665 for the city at large, which is taken up entirely by natural increase in civic services."

SEPARATE ESTIMATES

Departmental, utility operational and construction estimates have been tentatively agreed to, but the school boards' requisitions, and several other matters have to be dealt with before the consideration of the estimates are completed and the tax rate struck.

One of these matters is the request from the civic employees for an increase in the city's contribution to the joint pension fund. The employees are asking for an upward revision of $15 monthly in the basic pension rate. A counter proposal is being submitted to council by the city comptroller, A. A. Campbell, which the commissioners believe the civic unions will accept.

It is stated that if city council accepts the report of Comptroller Campbell there should be no further major revision in the pension bylaw except under stress of some considerable change in economic conditions.

Council will be asked to confirm the recommendation of the finance committee voting an additional $3,000 to be placed in the contingency account for advertising and travelling expenses in connection with the Edmonton Industrial Development Board.

SEEK RATIFICATION

Council will be asked also to ratify the appointment of A. M. MacDonald, Oliver C. McIntyre and Charles E. Garnett as the Chamber of Commerce's nominees to the board, to appoint the three members of city council to the board, and ask the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council to nominate a member to sit on the board.

A report from City Commissioner R. J. Gibb relative to the Calgary Power agreement will be submitted to the council. This report was asked for at a recent meeting of council's bylaws committee.

Also to be considered by the council is a protest from the town planning commission against the building of the proposed trolley bus depot on the selected site in Rossdale. It is pointed out by the commission that this site is zoned as parklands, and "as we consider that the car barns are an industry we view with alarm the action of the city."

A protest will be heard also from the Victoria WCTU executive against the "high-handed method which the Edmonton Exhibition Association has taken to open this city to horse racing."

Objection to the making a grant out of public funds, or funds raised by levy on the taxpayers to promote concerts in the public library made by the Taxpayers' Protective Association of Edmonton will be considered also.

GRANT IS ASKED

Council will be asked also to make a grant of $700 this year to assist in the operations of the Mountglen Home and School Association, and the community YMCA.

Also to come before council is the application from the town of Beverly for incorporation within the city's limits, and a petition from 36 residents in the vicinity of a garage on 106A avenue and 98 street, recently destroyed by fire, seeking refusal of a permit to rebuild as a garage on this site.

Some Nerve!

SOMEWHERE IN GERMANY, March 26.—(AP)—The gall of German prisoners captured by the US 9th Army yesterday drew this caustic comment from Capt. Albert Genoulet, Berkeley, Calif.: "These prisoners have a hell of a nerve. They complain we do not go far enough so the war will end."

Dies at Toronto

TORONTO, March 26.—(CP)—Dr. Nathaniel Chamney James, 85, for 33 years on the staff of the University of Western Ontario at London, died here Saturday. He had been living in Toronto for the last two years.

SUSIE Q. SMITH—"We never got past discussing the weather... he's an army meteorologist!"

Allied Troops Think:

Complete Victory Very Near

By DON WHITEHEAD

U.S. 1st ARMY ACROSS THE RHINE, March 26.—(AP)—The feeling along this army front is that the powerful Allied assaults on the Western Front have wiped out the Rhine river defences and the Allied armies now stand on the threshold of complete victory over Germany.

Not in the 2½ years the United States has been in the war has such optimism prevailed among United States troops and officers as that which is cheering soldiers hearing news of new crossings on the Rhine against light enemy resistance.

There is a growing feeling that "this is it." Everywhere there is that sense of an impending finish to a long conflict—that this time the Germans cannot muster enough strength to stop the powerhouse drives of the Allies.

Few Casualties As Canadian Corvette Sunk

Nonsuch, Edmonton) the ship was escorting a convoy and the crew had gone to action stations a few moments before the explosion. Most of the men were on the upper deck. If they had been in the messdecks the casualty list would have been much greater.

The ship's whaler and Carley floats kept the survivors afloat until rescued by two Royal Navy motor launches. The survivors were stiff and exhausted from exposure in the cold water.

Lieut. Glasco, Lieut. W. Burnley Kinsman, of Vancouver, and Lieut. J. K. Mowat, Westmount, Que., were on the bridge when the ship was struck.

ISSUED ORDERS

"I gave the order to stand by boats and floats as she began to list," said Lieut. Glasco. "When the engineer officer (Warrant Engineer H. F. Hindle, of Vancouver) reported the engine room flooded, I gave the order to abandon ship. There was no panic. The men just stood by calmly until they received the order to go over the side."

"One of the last things I did was flash the convoy commodore to send a distress signal because our aerial had been smashed."

"The first lieutenant went over the starboard side in the whaler and I jumped over the port side and hung on to an oil drum."

The captain gave special praise to Lieut. Kinsman, in charge of the whaler. Kinsman rounded up the stragglers and wounded and did "an extremely efficient job."

Lieut. Kinsman told how he was on the bridge using the ship's hailer when there was a crash "and huge bits of metal flew everywhere."

WENT OVER SIDE

"I ran down to the boat deck to see if there was any hope of shoring up the damage and to make sure no one released any floats until the order was given," he said. "I reported back to the captain and he gave the order to abandon ship. He went over the port side and I went to the starboard side. By this time it was under water and I just waded to the whaler."

Warrant Engineer Hindle was in the engine room when the crash came and had a close call. He praised the efficiency of three engine room ratings: M. R. Angus, Kingston, Ont.; Douglas Excess, New Westminster, B.C.; and George Coar, Toronto. The three men helped get the wounded away from the ship and Coar, who couldn't swim, took charge of a Carley float.

"The terrific explosion stunned us all for a moment," he said, "but then we realized what had happened, and that there was no hope of saving the ship. Then the engine room began flooding."

SCRAMBLED UP TOP

"We scrambled up top and found some of the wounded lying on the deck. I sent word to the bridge that the engine room was flooded. The ship was settling fast so the ratings helped me get one of the wounded off. By this time the decks were awash."

"After we got away from the ship and reached a Carley float the bow of the ship was standing straight out of the water and we were afraid it would fall over on us. We felt relief when it went straight down."

So terrific was the explosion that some of the survivors were momentarily stunned and some knocked unconscious with no recollection of how they got away from the sinking ship. Coder Barrie Meyer, Regina, Sask., said he remembered "absolutely nothing" until picked up from a Carley float. He dislocated his knee and was suffering from burns.

SINKING BELIEVED CLOSE TO BRITAIN

LONDON, March 26.—(CP)—The Canadian corvette Trentonian has been torpedoed in waters close to the United Kingdom, it was indicated today by a press release which said survivors were picked up by Royal Navy motor launches. These launches have a relatively short range and are not deep-sea craft.

Accordingly the Trentonian could have been sunk around the British coast, in the English Channel or perhaps as far east as the Netherlands coast.

U.S. stamp taxes were paid on more than 45,350,000 packs of playing cards during a single year.

Alberta's Plan For Refunding Is Said Unfair

TORONTO, March 26.—(CP)—

The Investment Dealers' Association of Canada has lined up with the committee representing the holders of Alberta bonds in condemning the refunding plan proposed by the government of Alberta, which, it is contended, would be unfair and unjust to the bondholders.

A telegram dispatched to Premier Manning of Alberta Friday, by J. A. Kingsmill, secretary of the Investment Dealers' Association, says: "The Investment Dealers' Association of Canada has given careful study and consideration to your statements as reported in the press regarding the debt of Alberta and also the statement of Mr. Hsley outlining the federal government's desire to lend assistance in the readjustment of your debt."

ASSOCIATION OPINION

"It is the opinion of the association that the offer made by the federal government would have enabled the province of Alberta to solve in a fair and equitable manner the proper readjustment of its obligations to its bondholders without increasing the burden on the citizens of Alberta beyond that which your government was prepared itself to go."

"We are amazed that your government has rejected this offer of the Dominion government and in fairness we feel we should advise you that we do not consider that the plan of adjustment which you are advocating and which deals with the question in an arbitrary manner is fair and equitable."

"As a consequence your plan could not carry our endorsement and recommendation. Through our members consisting of 195 investment houses from coast to coast all your debentures have been marketed and in the circumstances we must actively oppose acceptance of the arbitrary policy and plan of readjustment set forth by your government."

MESSAGES EXCHANGED

During the week messages were exchanged between the bondholders' committee and the premier of Alberta in which the committee suggested a plan that, it was felt, would be fair to the bondholders and at the same time restore the credit of the province. The provincial premier, Mr. Manning, rejected the proposal and declined to meet the committee for further discussion.

In reply to this rejection the committee wired:

"To discard this suggestion without discussion is to continue an arbitrary attitude towards the bondholders. Your government has demonstrated that as a sovereign body you can, despite the ruling of the highest court, the privy council, fail to honor the promises of your predecessors in office and deny the rights of citizens to bring action in the courts for recovery. The individual citizen is undoubtedly dependent for justice upon the government's conception of honesty and fair dealing. We have no other alternative but to oppose actively the acceptance of your plan."

The committee's plan calls for full payment of arrears of interest to June 1, 1945. Holders of matured bonds would exchange them for new Alberta bonds dated June 1, 1945, and maturing serially 1946 to 1964 and bearing interest from two to three and one-half per cent depending on the terms. Holders of unmatured bonds would exchange their holdings for new bonds maturing 1964 to 1983 and bearing interest at present contract rates to the date of maturity and three and one-half per cent thereafter.

Air Landings Surprised foe

PARIS, March 26.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, chief of staff of the Allied 1st Airborne Army, said Saturday that the Germans apparently were caught by surprise by the Allied airborne landings east of the Rhine.

The airborne troops linked up with ground assault forces after landing three to five miles east of the Rhine, just north of Wesel.

The airborne attack was made by the British 6th Airborne Division—with Arnhem on its record—and the U.S. 17th Airborne, which saw action for the first time when thrown in west of Bastogne to help check the German onrush through the Ardennes.

(Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, said a Canadian parachute battalion, which fought in Normandy on D-Day was among the troops.)

Winnipeg Is Hit By Thunderstorm

WINNIPEG, March 26.—(CP)—A thunderstorm, accompanied by hail, struck Winnipeg Saturday night, leaving almost an inch of precipitation and causing a "blackout" at some places of amusement for as much as 30 minutes. It was the earliest rainstorm here in years. The downpour struck while hundreds of people were walking to downtown theatres. It caught several hundred persons standing outside the doors of the Amphitheatre rink where Winnipeg Monarchs were battling Port Arthur West End Bruins in the western junior hockey semi-finals.

Visits Bahamas

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 26.—(CP)—Lord Burghley, Governor of Bermuda, has gone to the Bahamas on a short visit, and it is speculated here he may sound out the Duke of Windsor on the possibility of the latter assuming the governorship here. It has been rumored recently that Lord Burghley may resign before the end of the year.

Final Touches Being Arranged For Allowances

OTTAWA, March 26.—(CP)—

Final touches are being put to the Canadian government's family allowances plan. The most recent development was the registration of the 3,500,000 Canadian children under 18 years of age and eligible for allowances.

Registration forms were mailed to parents in all part of the Dominion and Health Minister Claxton said it was expected that 1,300,000 of the 1,500,000 Canadian families with children would benefit in some way from the allowances. The remaining 200,000 families were in high income brackets and any payments to them would be drained back through income tax collections.

SCALE OF ALLOWANCES

Under the plan, the scale of the allowance payments, scheduled to begin next July, is $5 a month for a child under six; $6 a month for a child between six and 10; $7 a month for a child between 10 and 13; and $8 a month for a child between 13 and 16. For the fifth child of a family allowance is reduced by $1 a month, for each of the 6th and 7th children by $2 a month, and for the 8th and each additional child by $3 a month.

Officials estimate the payments will cost the Dominion approximately $250,000,000 annually. However, of that amount, to be paid out of the consolidated revenue fund, about $50,000,000 will be recoverable by reason of the cancellation of income tax exemptions for dependent children of families in the high income groups who receive the allowances.

Asks New Tax

MONTREAL, March 26.—(CP)—A 14-year-old orphan given a foster home in a suburban Vaudreuil farm, was brought here during the

On to Berlin

The big "heave" has started. It is a two-way push. By Saturday morning five Allied armies were across the Rhine in force, holding bridgeheads from Wesel to south of Mainz, a distance of 150 miles or more. And in the east, according to enemy reports, the Russians had pushed some miles west of Kuestrin.
The Rhine proved to be no serious obstacle. With sailors to manage the assault boats, the troops just paddled across in the moonlight, the U.S. 3rd Army Thursday night, the U.S. 9th, British 2nd and Canadian 1st Friday night. On their sector the Tommies even complained that the excursion was rather boring since the Jerries were providing no excitement from the farther side.
The reason apparently was that the Jerries were not there any more, except those whose fighting days were over. A week of obliteration bombing and a characteristic Montgomery artillery barrage had cleared the landing ground. To the south General Patton's 3rd Army troops chugged across without preliminary shelling, in wake of the fugitives from the Saar. The Rhine as a barrier against invasion proved to be even less effective than the Oder.
Thanks largely to a record-making force of paratroopers landed far beyond the river, all bridgeheads were quickly expanded and by Monday ranged from eight to forty miles deep.
Nowhere it is suggested that this easy crossing of the river means the spirit has gone out of the enemy. On the contrary, the expectation is that he will fight on the west as he is fighting in the east. But the Rhine was the last natural position favorable to a cross-country defence; and the fact that the storied stream is now held by the Allies will not be without reaction on enemy morale.

The Hermit Role

Four members of parliament have taken the position that Canada should not send a delegation to the San Francisco conference. They all represent constituencies in Quebec, and all rank as independents.
Just why these members want the Dominion to make itself an outcast among the nations and refuse to give its support to an attempt to build safeguards against another outbreak of war is no clearer from their speeches. These are too obviously a compilation of pretexts to be impressive. They clearly are attempts to marshal supposed reasons for taking a pre-determined stand, and leave to surmise the question of why isolation is proposed.
The most likely explanation is that these four dissenters have so steeped themselves in provincialism that they are only dimly aware of the existence of the outside world and the forces which shape human destiny—for people living in Canada as for those living in every other part of the globe.
Since they number only four, the votes of these members are of little consequence. But it is to be hoped their mental constriction is not shared by even a proportionate number of Canadians. If any moral stands out clearly from this terrible conflict it surely is that there is no security for any nation in playing the role of a hermit.
China tried that—and who would want to live under the alien domination that has fallen upon China as the direct result?

Back to Coupons?

Meat may be rationed again in Canada, but that does not now appear probable. This is the opinion of rationing and agriculture officials at Ottawa, commenting on the reduction of U.S. meat shipments to Britain.
This reduction will cut down civilian supplies in Britain seriously, according to reports from London. Largely because British reserves have been dissipated in order to help the food situation in the liberated countries. But it does not seem that Canada can do much about it. We have been sending to Britain, besides our contracted consignments of bacon, all the meat of other kinds left over from home consumption and for which shipping space could be secured. Stocks in storage in Canada are lower than they were a year ago, but there is nothing in the domestic situation to call for resumption of rationing.
Whether this will be imposed seems to hinge on the amount of shipping space which can be allotted to meat shipments after army supplies, including munitions, are provided for. The ration restriction was removed because a surplus accumulated which could not be sent overseas. The decline in stocks suggests that the home consumer has been eating more meat since the coupon requirement was suspended.
Though it would involve a return to rationing, and apparently somewhat less liberal supplies on Canadian tables, the hope will be general that shipping conditions will make it possible to enlarge shipments from the Dominion to Britain. Canadians will not want to go on eating as much meat as they please if there is any possibility of sending more to the people overseas who have been on short rations for five years. The less they want to do that because the people in Britain are in trouble for having sent their reserve supplies to the half-starved peoples on the continent—in response to appeals from General Eisenhower.

Mr. Liguoro Lacombe, who constitutes the Canada Party in the House of Commons, says Canada went to war to defend Poland. The rest of his speech doesn't matter. It couldn't be more absurd than the text.
Mr. Herbert Pell, U. S. representative on the Allied War Crimes Commission, says German and Japanese war criminals must be punished swiftly and severely if we are to avert a third world war. To humane people such talk does not sound pleasant; but it is the uncompromising truth. Unless the scoundrels who have murdered, tortured and robbed under cover of military operations are so dealt with, they and their kind will be busy advocates of another war—and another opportunity to do the same things.

The Ryukyu islands are strung like stepping stones from the southern tip of the Japan group to Formosa, about six hundred miles. Okinawa is one of the larger islands in the string, and holds the central position. It has been converted into a naval and air base, covering the seaway between the Jap homeland and Formosa. This key bastion has been put under heavy attack by the Task Force which battered the enemy main fleet in its home harbor of Kure. If the attack is preliminary to invasion it marks the beginning of an attempt to cut Japan off from its largest remaining insular possession—which it took from China at the close of the war of 1895.

Background of San Francisco

BY GRANT DEXTER
Across five years of conflict and over the waste of 20 years of frustration and disappointment, the victors in the Second World War may look back to the men who gathered in Paris in February and March of 1919 to make the peace which was to end war.
Although in 1919 Europe was convulsed by revolutions and civil wars, the political climate in the great democracies was marked by idealism and confidence, the prevailing mood was ardent; men's hearts were moved by a great principle—a principle which was to be set down, as in tablets of stone, in the Covenant. The Covenant was so self-evidently right and just that it would prevail.
Throughout 1914-18 there had been the gravest doubts of victory. But given victory, few in the democracies doubted that a lasting peace would follow. How different in 1939-45, in the darkest hour of 1940, few doubted in victory. And when Japan threw off the mask, far from yielding to despair, the mood was one of grim satisfaction that the last of the potential enemies was in the open, that the struggle in its world setting was now joined.

But with faith in victory there has been a marked lack of confidence in what is to follow. No one has talked of this war as one to end war or to make the world safe for democracy. The magic in the Fourteen Points, the Four Principles, the Four Objects and the Five Particulars, in the Lloyd George peace aims of January 5, 1918—the magic is gone. The political climate in which the victors of 1919 met at San Francisco to fashion a new world organization to take the place of the now unregarded League of Nations is one of disillusionment and cynicism. The present generation takes its text from Halifax the Trimmer: "The government of the world is a great thing; but it is a coarse one compared with fineness of speculative knowledge."
This change in mood in large measure accounts for the difference in the method by which future world peace is to be sought. There is no better way of measuring this change than to compare the Dumbarton Oaks plan with the Covenant. The goal, however, remains fixed. At San Francisco, on April 25, the purpose will be identical with that of Paris in 1919—peace.

It will be recalled that virtually no preparatory work preceded the drafting of the Covenant in 1919. There had been study given to the problem of world peace by interested people in the United States, in England, in France and to a lesser extent, in this country. Particulars in this regard—including an interesting letter of Sir Robert Borden—will be found in the volumes of the Marburg papers. When Dumbarton Oaks, as amended at

Columnist to Seek First Hand Knowledge of War Conditions

BY DOROTHY THOMPSON
This column has appeared uninterrupted for nearly two years, and its author feels that it is time to stop for a month and take a look around outside the United States, and particularly in Europe.
The job of the commentator has never been harder than during these past months. Information, except on the actual military situation, has been scant, and imagination has had to supply missing links in such information as was obtainable. It is a fascinating task to attempt to penetrate into the realities behind disparate facts, often contained in small and inconclusive dispatches. But the danger exists that the commentator becomes a writer of detective stories, sorting out many clues, evaluating them, separately and together, and putting together his own picture. Often one finds the truth—or some part of it—that

Supreme Libel on Victorianism

BY BRUCE HUTCHISON
In the past thirty or forty years... In 1929 the average workman in London could buy a third more articles of consumption for labor of an hour's less duration per day than he could buy forty years before. As for the American worker, his average wage increased by 32 per cent in actual purchasing power between 1914 and the depression—a third in fifteen years, and today it is still higher.
The great Swedish economist, Gustav Cassel, has showed that during the period, from 1865 to 1914 the world's production and consumption of wealth increased at an average of 3.15 per cent per year, and the rate in the United States was 4.03 per cent. The First World War interrupted this process, but from 1924 to 1929 world production rose by over 20 per cent, or 3.9 per cent per year. The depression interrupted the process again and we are now told that it demonstrated the final collapse of our economic system. It is seldom remembered now, as Mr. Schwarzschild points out, that the depression was less a part of the business cycle than the inevitable paralysis of a world weary of preparing for war and simply refused to do business. Given the assurance of peace at that period, the depression would have blown itself out much sooner.
In any case, after this setback, the production of wealth for the ordinary man (outside the devastated countries) has risen again to a new high. A recent report by members of the United States War Labor Board shows that hourly earnings of American labor have risen by 36.7 per cent since 1914, while living costs advanced only 30 per cent. An expert, no doubt, could document the rise in Canadian living standards during this war, but the layman needs no figures to prove it. He sees it on our streets, in our shops and homes and liquor stores.

In material terms—the terms which the critics of our economic system have selected for their argument—it is pretty plain to the layman, when he stops to look back for a moment, that the last hundred years have been the supreme century of the common man, the first century, in fact, when he has had any chance of prosperity. It was in this century that the inventive genius and the trading capacities of the common man were released for the first time. For the first time, in a few countries, the state stopped running and regulating everything, and it was in these countries that the vast new outpouring of wealth occurred. This must be more than a coincidence.
Yet we are now asked by the prophets of the more abundant life to return to the very system of rigid control and regimentation which preceded the nineteenth century and which lived in a crawling poverty such as we cannot imagine.
Yes, the ordinary man, without economic learning, can see the breathtaking progress of our modern century if he stops to think about it. But there are always glum folk who predict disaster unless our free economy is scrapped. In the 19th century there was a tribe of calamity howlers. Karl Marx held that unless the system was scrapped there would be "increasing misery." Under capitalism, he said, wages must constantly fall and working hours continually increase. The common man did not believe Marx. Nor will he believe the less persistent alarmists of our present days who declare that unless we go in for socialism we will be brought to the verge of starvation as soon as the disaster of peace occurs.

There are two scores of nations which will meet to discuss the future of the world. But are these nations which will there assemble? Or are these only governments, in some cases self-appointed, and in most cases over-aged? At this forthcoming conference, the United States will be the only country that during this war has had a general free election, and even here the continuation of the war policy was the leading issue in that election.
Even such an ancient parliamentary democracy as Great Britain has not had an election in ten years, to say nothing of the continental European countries.
Therefore, important as it is to observe the proceedings which will take place between high officials of old governments, provisional governments, or exiled governments, it seems to me equally, or perhaps more important, to observe what is going on in the minds of those whom they presume to represent. For one day every delegate to San Francisco will have to answer to them.
I am under no illusion that I shall be able to discern all the answers to all the questions. Actually not all the questions—and not even the most important ones—have yet been formulated. The answers will grow out of specific reactions to specific acts. It is even dubious whether the real face of the new world will be discernible during my lifetime. But it is interesting and necessary to be present at the hour of birth, even if we cannot predict the future of the child.
I would not be so rash as to try to write about Europe, from Europe, "off the cuff." At least a month will be needed to look around, to ask many questions of many people, in several countries—compare the answers, and think about them, quietly.
When I start writing again, a few weeks from now, I shall try to share with my readers an experience and a research, to which I look forward with immense eagerness.

Scientists are constantly revising their estimates of the life span of wild life.

Lord Rothschild's Galapagos tortoise in London became especially famous. The bones of the eldest among them are supposed to have encompassed Columbus's voyage of discovery and the first transoceanic flight.
The belief in the longevity of these tortoises is due to the fact that an extraordinary slow annual growth in all the animals studied in captivity. However, the researches of two American scientists have shown that under favorable conditions, corresponding as

Germany's Return to Paganism

BY CHESTER A. BLOOM
OTTAWA—When Hitler erected his Third Reich on the demonic philosophy of war as the inevitable fate and best good for humanity, it was necessary to sugar-coat the bitter pill for the then beaten, confused, and leaderless German masses. Hence his doctrine of false socialism with the slogan of blood, race and soil—the most highly developed form of a perverted patriotism that the world has known since the flowering of the ancient Roman republic.
It was, in fact, a return to the religious-patriotism of the classic Romans where any state decision was unthinkable until the auspices and haruspices had inspected the entrails of birds or lives of animals. But whereas the almost incredible Roman nation worship was a natural growth, Nazism turned back to the pagan form for political purposes and created a snide religion.
It is a signal failure of most modern writers to give due weight to the powerful hold the old Roman pagan traditions had on the German literary and legal mind. A complaint of Oswald Spengler in his "Decline of the West" is that German law looks backward to Rome rather than to Wolan.
In part, this was a legacy of the old misnamed and now long dead Holy Roman Empire, presided over for centuries by the Hohenstaufens and other German kings. In part it was due to the German longing for a civilized ancestry—nothing enrages the Germans more than to be called "Huns," and partly it may be attributed to the German archeologists who for long held world primacy in the science of reconstructing the classic Mediterranean, a fantastic, a shoddy, a meretricious and bloody religion.
What needs to be taken special note of is that these seeds of destruction have been sown around the planet. Can any thinking person look around the world today and be not disturbed by the increasing growth of national patriotism. Into pseudo-religious forms. Roman nation worship conquered the then world—and destroyed itself. The Germans came near to world conquest—and their nation is dying in a welter of ruined cities and blood.
Perhaps it is merely the law of action and reaction that national vain-glory everywhere today is approaching the borderline of religion. Wherever men choose to put love of country above humanity outside their own borders, wherever they place their own national virtue and valor and power on a high pedestal towering high above their neighbors, they have set their feet on the German road to ruin. Who can deny it?

LONDON TIMES
A point of some interest in regard to legal phraseology arose in the Companies Court.
Mr. Justice Vaisey, in granting a petition by the Attorney General on behalf of His Majesty for the compulsory winding-up of a company, commented on the omission of the words "humble" and "humbly" from the petition. The learned judge said that he would have thought that the Attorney General in approaching the court on behalf of His Majesty would not consciously leave out traditional words. It was one of those curious points, he added, where His Majesty came to his own court, not in his own person, but by the Attorney General. If His Majesty came to the court "petitioning," "praying," or "asking," there was no reason why the traditional words should not be used.
They were in no way derogatory, and he (His Lordship) was in no sense standing on the dignity of the court. The court would, in other words, be directed by a higher authority to keep to the traditional form.

Acquisition by the United States of air bases within B-29 range of Japan put the enemy homeland's six major war production cities sadly out of luck. As map above shows, they are clustered fairly close together, so that more than one of them can be smashed on a single mission.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

THIRTY young players from various parts of Canada, including 10 from Edmonton, have been invited to attend the Chicago Black Hawk Club's hockey school which opens at Regina on April 1 and will continue for seven days.

Eight of the ten from Edmonton are members of the Canadian Junior Hockey League, who recently lost out to Moose Jaw Canucks in the Abbott cup semi-finals. They are Don Murray (goal), Bill Gadsby and Leo Sorsa (defence), and forwards Cy Thomas, Eddie Thomas, John Rypien, Don Campbell and Vince Bannon.

Bob Manson, centre for EAC junior, and Bob Fleming, of Canadian juveniles, are the other two from this city. Three Canmore boys are in the group of Albertans who take in the school.

Clarence Moher, coach of the Junior Canadians and Smythe Fleming, chairman of hockey for the Canadian Athletic club, will leave with the Edmonton delegation next Saturday. Paul Thompson, coach of the Black Hawks, and Cecil (Tiny) Thompson, western scout, also are included in the list who are to be in Regina for the school.

And the boys have an extra dinner, with all the trimmings, to look forward to while the school is in progress, the ticket for same to receive the personal attention of Paul Thompson—which will please Moose Jaw's Cliff Henderson no little. It's just the result of a little difference of opinion as to the outcome of the recent Canuck-Canadian series.

Hassie Young Tallies Four

Flyers Cop NWAC Puck Crown

Led by Hassie Young with four goals, Edmonton RCAF Station Flyers trimmed Grande Prairie 6-4 in a Red Cross benefit game at the Arena Saturday night to win the North West Air Command hockey championship.

Following the game, the north players congratulated the winners and both teams lined up as Air Vice-Marshal T. A. Lawrence presented the trophy to "Red" Ryan, big Flyer defence man. Group Capt. Dave Harding, OBE, AFC, officer commanding Edmonton Station and Wing Commander Pate, O. C. Grande Prairie Station, officially opened the contest.

Mike McCloskey and "Chuck" Normandin fired the other two for the winners while Herman Wagner, winger of the high-flying Young-McCloskey-Wagner line, picked up two assists.

The Verity-Somers-Clemens trio led the Grande Prairie attack with Doug Verity netting two and helping in another and Tom Somers scoring one and assisting in Verity's pair.

The game was fast and hard fought all the way. Both goalies turned in some sensational stops, but the big difference of the two clubs was the defence. The Edmonton rearguard was really handing out the body checks while the lighter Grande Prairie defence was unable to stop the attacking forwards as effectively.

Young opened the counting at 13:25 of the first period when he banged in a nice pass out from behind the net by Wagner. Somers had a neat chance to deadlock the count on the next Grande Prairie rush but hit the post, and then at 18:44 Normandin made the red light flash for the Flyers, beating Kavanagh with a low, hard shot from just a few feet out.

The second frame was a free scoring period that saw seven goals tallied. The losers came within one marker of tying the count at the 12 minute mark when Somers netted, but Young drove home two more in a row to put the Flyers well out in front again. The frame wound up 6-3.

The Grande Prairie puck-chasers put on the pressure in the third and were finally rewarded when Koch took a pass from Marshall at the blueline and skated in alone to notch his club's fourth counter while the visitors were short handed.

LINEUPS
Grande Prairie: Kavanagh, Reilly, Oleksiewicz, Verity, Somers, Clemens, Somers, Irwin, Marshall, Thibault, Koch, Verity, Turgeon, Terry, Ryan, Wagner, McCloskey, Young, Sub-Normandin, Woods, Fillion, Wilson, Somers, Verity, 13:00. 6, Edmonton, Young, 13:31. 9, Edmonton, Young (Wagner), 10:48. Penalties—Clemens, Ryan (2), Reilly.
Third Period—10, Grande Prairie, Koch (Marshall), 17:05. Penalties—Reilly (2), Verity, Wilson.

STAR IN NHL PLAYOFFS—Elmer Lach, left, Canadiens' playmaking centre and winner of the National Hockey League scoring race, and Mud Bruneteau, right, veteran Red Wing, inspired their clubs to important Stanley Cup victories over the week-end. Lach started the Montrealers on the way to their 4-1 triumph at Toronto Saturday night with the first goal of the evening and Bruneteau drove home what proved to be the winning tally as Detroit won its first game of the semi-final with Boston last night.

Next Tilt Tuesday Night

Canadiens Stop Toronto 4-1 To Get Back in Playoff Race

TORONTO, March 26.—(CP)—Montreal Canadiens, serving notice they still are a considerable factor in the Stanley Cup hunt, Saturday registered a 4-1 victory against Toronto Maple Leafs in the third game of their eight-point semi-final series before 15,087 fans. Leafs lead the series 4-2.

Last week Canadiens lost 3-2 and 1-0 to Leafs at Montreal, but Saturday night they dominated every department to assure a fifth game in the series at Montreal next Thursday. The teams meet here again on Tuesday.

Canadiens established a 4-0 lead in the first two periods which stood up behind a rock-like defence until veteran Bob Davidson blasted the puck past Montreal goalie Bill Durnan midway in the third with assistance from Babe Pratt and Lorne Carr. After that the Leafs rally fizzled.

Elmer Lach, playing with a swollen ankle, started habitants on their way when he scored the only goal.

LINEUPS
Montreal: Durnan, Bouchard, Lamoureux, Lach, Richard, Blake, Sub-Hiller, Gettiffe, Chamberlain, Gauthier, Fillion, Mahaffy, Stahan.
Toronto: McCool, Pratt, Morris, Kennedy, Davidson, Hill, Sub-Hamilton, McLean, Carr, Schirmer, N. Metz, Stanowski, Bodnar, D. Metz.

Beat Calgary In Two-Game Series 14-11

MAPLE LEAF Athletic Club, coached by Bob Haxby, defeated Calgary Buffaloes 9-4 at the Arena here yesterday afternoon in the second of the two-game total goal series for the Alberta midget hockey championship and took the round 14-11. The Buffaloes won Saturday night 7-5.

Ken Watson, high scoring Edmonton forward collected a total of seven goals, two in the first game and five in the second and he also set up two others. Stuart Robertson and Ray Strate netted two each, while the other Maple Leaf counters went to Jim Stewart, Denis Smith and Jack Williams.

Allan Purvis notched two for Calgary in the Saturday game and Bob Carlson sniped a pair yesterday. Other scorers for the Buffaloes were Dick Douglas, Hube Lundmark, Bruce MacDonald, Sherrill Moore, Bob Schied, Ernie Kline and Bob Rutter.

The Calgary boys, a big midget club, outplayed the Leafs in the Saturday night fixture which immediately followed the North West Air Command playoff between Grande Prairie and Edmonton RCAF squads. They held a four-goal lead midway in the third period, but Watson and Robertson (from Phillips), slipped in a pair to leave the final score 7-5.

Bob Rutter's goal at 14:38 in the second period of Sunday's game gave Calgary a 4-4 tie for the day and an 11-9 lead on the round.

Denis Smith, however, counted from Stuart Robertson before the period ended to cut the margin in half and Ken Watson combined with Smith to deadlock the series at 11:41 just two minutes after the opening of the final stanza.

Jack Williams with the help of Phillips and Robertson put Leafs out in front at 9 minutes and Watson boosted the margin to three with a pair of markers which came eight seconds apart, the first at 13:40 and on which Robertson drew an assist.

Cecil (Tiger) Goldstick and Johnny Colville refereed the Saturday game and the former and Sam Timmins were the officials yesterday.

LINEUPS
Calgary: Bartlett, Oughton, Lundmark, Douglas, McDonald, Rutter, Schied, Carlson, Moore, Sub-Applington, Kline, Purvis, Steele.
Edmonton: Patterson, Thompson, Smith, Strate, Watson, Stewart, Sub-Robertson, Frey, Phillips, Williamson, Stocks, Wilson.

Red Wings took advantage of two Boston lapses late in the first period to score twice in 61 seconds.

slammed it past goalie Paul Bibeault.

That two-goal margin was maintained until late in the second session when Egan, determined to wipe out his miscue, rifled home Kenney Smith's long forward pass while both teams played one-shot.

With less than five minutes left, Mud Bruneteau scored the winning goal and gave the Wings a 3-1 lead by lashing in an unassisted 30-footer from an almost impossible angle.

Boston's second counter was supplied by Gino Rozzini after taking Paul Gladu's passout.

Bruins emptied their own net with 30 seconds to go to throw six mobile players into one last furious try that was overcome by the smooth playing Red Wings.

The fourth game of the series will be played here Tuesday night and regardless of the outcome, the teams will return to Detroit for the fifth chapter Thursday.

Those who couldn't qualify for active service are fulfilling a duty that served to keep the peace time militia alive as well as helping in general training purposes.

61st (R) FIELD BATTERY RCA

The Dominion of Canada Rifle Association practices were carried on by the Battery sharpshooters Tuesday evening. Some good scores were made and we hope the March targets, which are the finals for the competition, will be a credit to the Battery.

The Battery has just completed its first elementary tests with the Sten guns and the interest shown in this wicked little weapon was evident by the very gratifying results.

The dates for the annual camp at Sarcee were announced and everyone is endeavoring to make arrangements to attend.

The officers have been busy answering a paper on artillery subjects sent up from Regimental Headquarters in Calgary. Everyone is in agreement that it is proving a very valuable brush up.

Gun laying was continued Wednesday evening, and the Battery is becoming quite expert with the 25-pounder.

Beginning with the first parade in April a new syllabus has been arranged and it is hoped that a considerable portion of the parade may be devoted to outdoor exercises special to this particular branch of the service and with the continued enthusiasm which has previously been shown, it is believed that the coming year may prove to be of instructional benefit to personnel.

28 Bills Before House as Final Week Underway

With prorogation scheduled for Wednesday or Thursday of this week, the Legislature on Monday will settle down to a final drive on legislation.

Twenty-eight bills are before the house, 18 being ready for second reading and another nine in committee of the whole stage. At least one major bill, consolidating and amending the Alberta Mines Act, is yet to be introduced. This bill, containing over 100 sections, will be the largest before the session, including more than 70 pages.

Tuesday the house will debate establishment of a non-English radio station in Edmonton. J. Percy Page (Ind., Edmonton) has placed a resolution on the order paper of the assembly calling for "emphatic protest" against opening of such a broadcasting station.

TEXT OF MOTION

The resolution follows: "Whereas newspaper reports and radio broadcasts have indicated that an application has been made to the CBC for the issuance of a radio broadcasting license to a non-English station to be located in Edmonton; and whereas it is the considered opinion of this Legislature that the issuance of a broadcasting license to groups on the basis of language or nationality distinction will tend to encourage and promote a spirit of national disunity;

"Therefore be it resolved that this Legislature go on record as being emphatically opposed to any such action on the part of the CBC." Copies of the motion, if passed, will be forwarded to the Dominion government and the CBC.

Capt. J. Harper Prowse, army representative in the Legislature, will be seated in the assembly this week, probably Monday.

Elected in January as army member he arrived in Edmonton Sunday night.

The Inquiring Reporter

What do you think could be done to keep Edmonton streets cleaner?

THE ANSWERS

BILL JOHNSON, delivery boy: Personally the only thing that bothers me about the streets is the dust and when you're riding a bicycle the cinders and sand in the streets can sure make life miserable. I'd like to see them give paved streets a real washing two or three nights a week if necessary. They could use the fire hose and really do a good job. The ordinary street water sprinkler hasn't enough pressure to carry the dirty down the drains.

MARJORIE MACDONALD, secretary: The streets could be kept a lot cleaner if more propaganda was used. In the downtown streets I think there should be more waste paper boxes around and a drive made to make people conscious of trying to keep the streets clean.

HELEN POWELL, clerk: If citizens would co-operate in keeping the streets free of paper and rubbish the job of the city street cleaners would be much easier. The dust is what bothers me, 'cause during the summer there's almost always a wind and the stinging dust is really miserable. If the city would wash the streets free of grit every night I'd be quite happy.

255 Co-Operatives Now in Province

A total of 255 "co-ops" were operating in Alberta at the end of February, according to statistics released Monday by the provincial trade and industry department.

Largest group of the total was stores, of which 94 were conducting business on Feb. 28. Next came livestock associations, 57, farm supplies, 30, livestock feeders, 18, dairy and poultry products, 15, and sundry, 14.

Nevest co-ops to be formed in the province are the Bruderheim Co-Op Association, incorporated March 10; the Waugh Co-Op Association, incorporated March 10, and five credit unions, at Rockyford, Athabasca, St. Edward, Bowden and Edmonton. The city credit union, incorporated March 2, is the St. John's Savings and Credit Union Ltd. The Rev. E. Doyle, 10644 113 street, is provisional secretary.

Red Cross Fund Totals $211,662 In Closing Week

With the national Red Cross campaign in its final week Northern Alberta Red Cross officials reported that a total of $211,662 had been contributed to date by Edmonton and district residents. The Canadian target is $10,000,000.

L. Y. Cairns, KC, committee liaison chief, Monday appealed to Edmontonians who have not yet given their donation to the Red Cross, to dig into their pockets for even the smallest amount of money.

"Every cent we can give the Red Cross is going to play its part in saving lives and adding to the comfort of Canadian boys serving on every front," Mr. Cairns said. He urged citizens to make this last campaign week the biggest week of the drive.

LARGER DONATIONS

Among larger donations acknowledged Monday were $2,000 from North West Brewing Company, Ltd., and $584 from the firm's employees; $1,292 from the University of Alberta staff; $1,000 from the Great Western Garment Company Ltd. employees; and donations exceeding $200 from Imperial Oil, Ltd., Canadian Legion No. 24, Gorman's Ltd., Hayward Lumber Company staff, Sicks' Edmonton Brewery, Army and Navy Department Store, Edmonton Cold Storage Company, Ltd., Edmonton Paint and Glass Company, Ltd., and the Searle Grain Company.

In the district campaign, donations exceeding $1,000 were received from Bon Accord, Viking, Myran, Chauvin, Cadomin, Clyde, Toffield, Edson and Holden.

Group 70 Charges In One Indictment

Trial of Erwood C. "Dutch" Lyons, Edmonton second hand motor car dealer, was set over until 2 p.m. Monday when Gerald O'Connor, KC, on behalf of the crown indicted Harold L. Hawk, KC, police magistrate, that at the request of defence counsel the crown was consolidating the 70 counts against the accused into one indictment.

At previous court sittings the accused reserved his plea, but defence counsel A. W. Miller, KC, and Nelson V. Buchanan, KC, indicated they would be ready to proceed with the trial Monday afternoon.

Lyons faces 42 counts of selling automobiles at prices in excess of the ceiling set by War Time Prices and Trade Board regulations, one of purchasing a motor car above the ceiling, and 27 counts of making false statements. It is understood that more than $10,000 is involved in the over-selling charges.

Gets Six Months On Theft Charge

Robert McGrath, Edmonton, was found guilty in supreme court Monday by Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing of breaking and entering and was sentenced to serve six months in Fort Saskatchewan jail. He was charged with breaking and entering the Norwood service station, 9116 111 avenue, on the morning of Feb. 15 last.

The accused with two companions was seen by police officers standing at the door of the service station. As they swung the "prowler car" into the station driveway, the men ran away, the accused being captured after a short chase, the others escaping.

He was found to have 239 coppers and small change in his pockets. A large number of coppers had been stolen from the service station. It was found when police checked-up Entry into the station was effected through a basement window.

Many Problems To Be Faced by Democracies

There are many problems facing a democracy at war and it is the duty of every individual to inform himself as fully as he can so that he may exercise his own judgment most efficiently. H. A. Dyde, former military secretary to the Minister of National Defence, told members of the "Kiwans" club when he addressed their Monday luncheon meeting in the MacDonald hotel.

Speaking on "A Democracy at War," he pointed out some of the problems which confront a democracy in carrying on war, with special reference to the problems which face the department of national defence.

DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES

"We endeavor to adhere to the principles of democracy and parliamentary government and at the same time speed up the process so that we can approach in efficiency the enemy, who has long since thrown overboard all democratic ideas," he said.

He said there was a question as to whether administration of department of national defence should be one united department or three, one for each of the services.

"The plan in effect in Canada is something of a compromise which has worked reasonably well," he said, "but which still requires a good deal of study in order to work out the best system."

Another problem is that more important members of the government are overworked and despite the appointment of parliamentary assistants the departmental work of the minister is still too heavy.

A PROBLEM

The necessity of maintaining the principle of the supremacy of civil over military authority also presents a problem and the delegation of authority to the executive and to military commanders constitutes a question requiring the greatest judgment.

The speaker said there is the question of the place of criticism in parliament and elsewhere of operations carried on by the navy, army and air force. He said "Criticism and inquiry must not be stifled but at the same time we must get on with the war."

Happy Reunions

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Each Person Is His Own Best Company

To Dwell on Misfortunes Makes One Bitter Toward Life; If Dealt a Hard Blow in Life Only Thing to Do Is to Laugh It Off

Inasmuch as we have to live with ourselves from the cradle to the grave, is it not a strange thing that we do not try to fit ourselves to be more agreeable companions? For there is no escaping our alter egos. We can't divorce our other self as we can a nagging wife, or a cantankerous husband. We can't avoid our own society as we can that of a dull and tiresome bore. We have simply got ourselves hung around our necks like the old woman or old man of the sea, and goodness only knows why we don't try to do something about it.

Now take our looks, for instance. No one will deny that a beautiful woman and a handsome man are a treat to the eyes of the beholder, and all of us would like to be glamorous boys and girls. Unfortunately, Nature doesn't turn out many Miss Americans and Robert Taylors, but for all of that, we are not doomed to shudder at our reflections every time we pass a mirror.

For in these days no one need be as homely as God made them unless they are lacking in enough intelligence and energy to be otherwise. Plastic surgery can give them any kind of a nose they fancy, from a Greek profile to a perky pug. A stringbean figure or a curvaceous armful is a matter of diet. Complexions can be bought a dime a dozen at the drug store, and whether a woman is a blonde or a brunette, whether she has straight hair or curls is purely a matter of volition.

Furthermore, there is always, as the French say, la toilette to fall back upon as an ever present help in times of need. As long as there are good clothes, and dressmakers and tailors with skill to deal artfully with our deficiencies, no one has to go through life looking and feeling like a living caricature of a human being.

Then there is the matter of having an agreeable life companion. Our entire happiness depends upon that. It is terrible to even think of having to spend 50, or 60, or perhaps 70, or 80 years with a person who never has an original idea, or who can never think of anything amusing to do, who bores you to tears.

Well, the way to avoid that is to make yourself your own best company. Get about among people. Keep in the going. Cultivate an interest in everything about you. And read. And read. And read. The man who can say "my mind to me a kingdom is" is never lonely. He never lacks for companionship.

And what we all crave is cheerful companionship. We like to have people about us who are jolly and full of pep, who tell us funny stories, and who give us fresh hope and courage and make us feel that life is still worth living. Well, it is up to you whether you have cheerful Charlie or Gloomy Gus for a stand-in, for you are him. You can either take the sorrows and disappointments of life on the chin and come up smiling, or you can dwell on all the misfortunes that have befallen you until you grow so seared and embittered and pessimistic that you dread your own society.

Since we are bound to live with ourselves for years and years, isn't it a pity we don't try to make that companionship more agreeable? DOROTHY DIX.

Debunker

February 2 has been called "groundhog day," and it has been believed that if the groundhog emerges from his winter nest on this day and does not see his shadow, fair weather will follow. It would be only the remotest chance if a groundhog ever came out on "groundhog day," for they seldom appear this early. They are quite sure to see their shadows when they do come out, for they come out on sunny days. Of course, there is no connection whatever with the weather.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

There is little question but that you are turning your small children out to play these pleasant days and wishing that you could be as easy in your mind as they are. Is it dangerous to allow them the liberty of the front yard, unwatched? Dare one believe their earnest promises to stay right at home? What shall one do about the child who has become so used to the parent's company that he screams the moment she turns her back on him?

Minute Make-Ups

Hats still look smartest with up-swept hair. The Page Boy revival has captured the hearts and heads of many, but they go in for velvet bandeaus or calots. The new hats do not "go with" the Page Boy. Blonde heads are getting more popular. Maybe it's not only gentlemen who prefer blonde! And its easy today to have your hair tinted beautifully—if you have the time and your budget will allow.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

I am expecting our third baby. (So begins the prospective mother's letter. There is something wrong with that sentence. What's wrong with it becomes apparent as the letter goes on.)

In search of a doctor, I interviewed an obstetrical specialist. (Something wrong with that sentence, too. This may not become apparent, so we'll say an employer interviews applicants for a job, a reporter interviews persons or persons who desire publicity, a patient consults a physician or prospective parents engage a physician.)

... since I have had specialized help before, and was shocked at his opinions and flimsy excuses, especially since he is supposed to be a doctor. (Something wrong about this sentence, too. Why the sudden lapse into the noncommittal or futuristic mood? Does the lady insinuate that ordinary folk suppose but not she, or that the doctor ever plays his own importance? Nobody knows. That's the purpose of the futuristic mood.)

... since he is supposed to be on the staff of three of the best hospitals. He told me the usual story about men being frail, and they have trouble with them. He said the Health Department had rules against that (presence of the prospective father during delivery) and that there are only a few little "off-brand" hospitals in the vicinity where the husband is permitted in the delivery room.

When he saw I didn't swallow such arguments, he tried another, telling me...

(Believe it or not, this debate occurred in May, 1944. This, when even common plodding practitioners, to say nothing of genuine specialists, have to turn away some new patients for sheer inability to give them the necessary attention. Well, let's see whether this merchant sold the lady a bill of goods.)

Points for Parents

By EDITH THOMAS WALLACE

Mother: "The fruit in this bowl and the cookies in this smaller jar you may share with your friends after school, but I count on all the other food for family use."

Having a definite understanding about food kept in specified places is one of the easily-attained ways of lessening family tension.

... telling me that husbands like to see their wives at their best and it is nice to wait until afterward. Of course that was the last straw. I could not engage him after that. But where shall I find a doctor who regards childbirth... Why can't doctors and hospitals see the human side? They seem to see only the biological aspect, such as a veterinary would see in caring for stock. (Signed, Mrs. ...)

The remark that the Health Department has "rules" against presence of the husband is just a little bolder effort to deceive than the bombast about being on the staff of the best hospitals.

The veterinary's suggestion that men are frail and that husbands like to see their wives at their best... I'm afraid there is more truth in that, although the vet flatters such husbands by calling them men.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief, and written in ink. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, 265 El Camiso South, Beverly Hills, Calif.)

Eye-Witness Account

Airborne Landing by Allies Said "Beautiful Operation"

In the following eye-witness dispatch from the Allied Airborne forces after their landing east of the Rhine, Don Campbell, Reuters war correspondent, tells the story of the first day of the greatest airborne operation yet carried out by the Allied armies.

—EDITOR.

WITH THE AMERICAN 17TH AIRBORNE DIVISION, EAST OF THE RHINE.—(Delayed)—(Reuters)—I am typing against a tree in a forest, several miles east of the Rhine.

The overall commander of the British Airborne forces told me five minutes ago: "It's a beautiful operation. We have got a lot of stuff over."

My glider was lucky. Part of the nose was smashed when we glided to a standstill through a fence. And there may have been half a dozen bullet holes through the wings. But we all got out uninjured, through the emergency door.

GLIDERS WRECKED

I saw gliders balanced on their nose, gliders wrapping themselves round farmsteads, gliders burning, gliders wrestling with telegraph wires—gliders everywhere and still coming in, hitting chimney stacks, bursting ditches, lurching drunkenly to a halt.

A man shot by my side was operated on with a trench knife.

Many of these young American boys who have seen so little of battle, have lived twice their age overnight. They look like old men with young bodies.

"Seeing buddies killed under your nose does it," one American said.

There is a lot of blood and death and ugly sights such as corpses without limbs.

Nobody quite seems to know where we go from here. We have cleared an area of mortars and small arms.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

AMERICA'S CARD AUTHORITY

Have you ever met Sylvia at the bridge table? Sylvia is the girl who does the wrong thing but it always works out right.

You might say that you can make six clubs on this hand if you know where all the cards are. Therefore I want you to play the hand knowing that king of clubs is doubleton.

Where do you win the first diamond trick? Well, if you trump it, you cannot make the hand. You must win it with the ace. Your next play is the king of hearts and now you must lead the queen of clubs. West wins this with the king and supposing he returns a club. You win it with the nine spot in dummy, lead a small heart and ruff it, ruff a diamond in dummy, lead another small heart and trump it.

Now you can still get into the dummy by ruffing another diamond and all the hearts are good. Looks simple, but Sylvia did not take the king of clubs when the queen was led. She played a small club. Now try and make it. Sure, you can pick up Sylvia's king of clubs with your ace but you have not enough entries into dummy to establish that heart suit.

In one day the Canadian Navy launched a Tribal destroyer, two frigates, a corvette, an Algerine minesweeper, a patrol vessel, a tanker, two large freighters, and three other utility vessels.

Now you can still get into the dummy by ruffing another diamond and all the hearts are good. Looks simple, but Sylvia did not take the king of clubs when the queen was led. She played a small club. ## Fuehrer Decides on Gamble

Hitler Hopes Chaos in Europe Will Serve to Keep Nazism Alive

By JOHN A. PARRIS, Jr.

LONDON, March 26.—(AP)—Hitler has completed military and political plans for an attempt to keep Nazism alive on the gamble that Allied victory in Europe will be followed after a short interlude by tremendous chaos, it was reported yesterday on the basis of reliable advices from inside Germany.

The sources were anti-Nazi German refugees and intelligence agents of military and political authorities in Europe's exiled governments.

Hitler was declared intending to use Berchtesgaden as a fountainhead to flood the world again with Nazism.

To carry out the political side of his plan, Hitler is reported to have 20,000 men and women between the ages of 18 and 35 trained as secret agents for duty at home and abroad. Large numbers of his agents are in neutral countries and it is not unlikely many of them are posing as refugees.

On the military side, he is understood to have turned the Berchtesgaden-Salzberg area into a gigantic fortress with subterranean aircraft factories, hangars and airfields, synthetic fuel plants, motor and ball-bearing factories, and stocks of food and munitions for a three-year siege.

The pageant was presented by the Health Education department and was under the direction of Miss Ursula Forbes and Miss Joyce McLean, physical directors. Mrs. T. Malone was accompanist. L. Jordan was responsible for the scenery and Bob Hunter handled the lighting effects.

Approximately entitled, "Down by the Old Mill Stream," the setting of the pageant centred around an old mill set up at the far end of the pool. Five youngsters started the pageant off as they tripped down in the "stream" with school books slung over their shoulders. In the presentation "Ye Old Swimming Hole," a fine showing was given by younger swimming groups who depicted rabbits, ducks, beavers, water beetles and farmerettes of "Old McDonald's Farm."

HUMOROUS NOTE

A humorous note was added to the performance in the Popeye skit, presented by four girls, which proved the effectiveness of spinach in saving poor "Olive Oyl" from disaster. A life saving demonstration was of especial interest.

Various dives, such as the plain dive, swan, back dive, etc., were demonstrated by a group of girls and was well received by the audience. A demonstration of grace and skill was that given by five members of the Sports Club in the act entitled "Gypsies." Mrs. B. V. ## Edmonton Philharmonic Society Scores Triumph in Third Concert

An audience that filled the Empire theatre on Sunday night bestowed lavish, unstinted applause on the Edmonton Philharmonic Society which appeared in its third concert of the current season. It was scheduled as the final appearance in the regular series, but there are strong indications that a fourth, or "canceled" concert will be given toward the end of next month. Miss Bernice McBeth, soprano, was the guest soloist.

The program was both long and difficult, but the orchestra came through the ordeal thus improved with added laurels and increased confidence. Although there has been a loss of players, due to the transfer of the RCAF National Air Command to the Pacific Coast, notably Gus Lindskoog, the concertmaster, Chris Dewhurst, first trumpet, and others, the ranks were rapidly closed and the orchestra was fortunate in adding other good players.

WORK AS REWARDED

The intensive rehearsals carried on since the last concert brought results and the performance as a whole revealed considerable progress. There was a greater elasticity in the playing. The rubato of the choir and flute came easier and aided to the general effectiveness. The intonation too was greatly improved. There was an earnestness, sincerity and enthusiasm about the concert as a whole that eloquently testified to the spirit prevailing in the organization.

Abe Frankin, conducted with profound musicianship and a thorough knowledge of the works, their requirements and potential.

Mozart's great Symphony in G Minor, was given a generally competent performance. It requires the greatest precision and technical mastery, to say nothing of tremendous interpretative qualities to do it justice. In the Trio section, and in the final movement there was a departure from the otherwise lofty standard but on the whole it was a most creditable performance.

Handsome, though popular, Shostakovich's symphony, given in effective and enlightening performance that gave all sections of the orchestra ample scope for display.

In smaller form but equally effective were the Brahms Hungarian Dances Nos. 3 and 6, the Gluck Brahms Gavotte, Handel's Minuet from the opera "Berenice," Schubert's Moment Musical No. 3 and the overture to Strauss' "The Gypsy Baron."

Miss Bernice McBeth soprano was the soloist. She was heard in the aria "Ah, My Son," from Meyerbeer's opera "The Prophet" and the Strauss-Korngold "Whispering."

Hudson's Bay company store on Tuesday, March 27 at 2:30 p.m. Mrs. C. A. Vanderloest will receive the guests, and the committee in charge of arrangements includes Mrs. E. Wayne and Mrs. M. Byar assisted by Mrs. Vesla Morrison, Mrs. M. Wallace, Mr. S. Fraser, Mrs. F. Watson and Mrs. L. Dane.

Court Decides Captives Liable For Own Crimes

Appeal by two German prisoners of war against conviction on a charge of stealing a truck was dismissed Monday by the court of appeal of Alberta in a judgment written by Chief Justice Horace Harvey and concurred in by Mr. Justice Frank Ford, Mr. Justice A. P. Ewing, Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald, all of the Alberta court of appeal, and Mr. Justice Hugh John Macdonald, of the trial division.

The appeal was brought by August Kaehler and Otto Stolski, prisoners of war working on the western irrigation district farm at Strathmore under the supervision of an official of the Dominion labor department. They escaped on August 8, 1944, and in aid of their escape they broke into a shed on the farm, and also stole a motor truck, the property of the district.

NO JUSTIFICATION

The court held there was no justification for the view that prisoners of war were immune from liability for criminal offences committed in attempting to escape, and pointed to the fact that liability to punishment for such offences is clearly recognized by article 51 of the Geneva Convention.

It said that "if attention had been given to the fact that for the theft of a motor car a judge or magistrate in a civil court is not permitted to exercise unfettered discretion in imposing such a sentence as he thinks the case deserves, but is compelled to impose a term of imprisonment of one year at the least, it might not have been thought desirable to have this case dealt with in a civil court."

"One can hardly think that any magistrate or judge would have deemed this offence, under its special circumstances, deserving of more than a very short term of imprisonment," the judgment stated.

APPEAL ALLOWED

The court, at its February sittings in Calgary, allowed the appeal against conviction on the breaking and entering charge, and reserved judgment on the theft of an automobile count. In the former the court was of the unanimous opinion that the evidence at the trial fell short of being sufficient to justify the inference of intent to steal, which intent must be found as an essential element of the offence.

Dealing with the appeal against conviction on the theft of a motor car charge, the judgment stated that "it cannot be said that the magistrate was not justified in finding the appellants guilty of the motor truck theft. There was evidence of possession that called for an explanation but none was given."

"There was quite a strong chain of circumstantial evidence apart from the presumption arising from recent possession. The fact that the appellants and the truck were seen leaving the farm at 10:30 p.m. on the night of the escape, the fact that the truck was found at a distance of 60 miles away, that attempts were made to obtain gasoline, and one of them had the gasoline ration book in his possession furnish a chain of strong circumstantial evidence."

CLAIM OF COUNSEL

Counsel for the appellants at the appeal submitted that even if guilty of stealing the truck they are not liable to punishment because, as prisoners of war they are entitled to escape, and any act done to facilitate escape is justified and does not impose criminal liability. Commenting on appellants' counsel's contention the court said "it is a rather startling proposition before a most effective means of securing freedom would be by the killing of their guard, and anyone else who attempted to stop them. The appellants' counsel claims immunity even for such an act."

"It is somewhat singular that with the thousands of prisoners of war that have been confined in England and Canada as well as the United States during the years of the present war, and also during the war of 1914-1918, during which there have been thousands of attempts to escape, no authority in support of this proposition can apparently be found beyond that of two police magistrates in Ontario," the judgment states. The only decisions on a point to which counsel has been able to refer are the Ontario cases, supporting his contention, and two in Alberta, including the present case, to the opposite effect.

In one Ontario case the prisoner of war was acquitted, but appeal against dismissal of the charge was taken by the attorney-general of that province, but the decision of the appeal court does not settle the question raised in the present case, the court said.

ARTICLES STOLEN

In the other Ontario case the prisoner of war had concealed himself in a post office mail bag, and had subsequently cut his way out and stolen some articles from another mail bag. The magistrate found that some of the articles stolen could not be deemed to be necessary or useful in aiding his escape. Upholding the magistrate's decision the Ontario Court of Appeal restricted its decision to the facts of the case and did not express any opinion on the submission by counsel for the attorney-general that prisoners of war are entitled to the complete restraint of the criminal law whether or not the acts are a part of or incidental to escape from the detaining power.

The Alberta court accepted this decision as authoritative for the proposition that the Geneva Convention of 1929 is a part of the law of Canada, and that under it a prisoner has no immunity from the consequence of his committing an act which is committed by a member of one of our own armed forces would be punishable as a crime.

Mounties Recapture

One Escaped Nazi

TORONTO, March 26.—(CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police announced last night that Willie Duerbeck, German prisoner of war who escaped from a camp in northern Ontario, was recaptured later at Geraldton, Ont. No trace has yet been found of the 10 prisoners of war who escaped Tuesday from work camps in northern sections of the province. Nine escaped from a work camp at Kapuskasing and one from a prisoner camp at Long Lac.

Hope for Better World Is Based On Adherence to Moral Principles

Hope for a better world is based on full adherence without reserve, to the principles of morality and the dictates of religion. This statement was made Sunday afternoon by Father Marion of St. Joseph's Church when he addressed the third and final session of the Catholic Laymen's Forum at the Ukrainian hall.

Fr. Marion was speaking on the subject "The Basic Cause and the Basic Remedy," at a meeting attended by nearly 800 persons under the chairmanship of Dr. L. P. Moussau. The speaker laid the blame for corruption and general disorder on bankruptcy of morals, not of money. Mankind, he said, has revolted and has rejected God's principles of justice and fraternal charity.

CLAIM IS VOID

"When those at the head of a state repudiate religion, they can no longer claim that their authority is derived from God to promote the common good, but are forced to say their authority is absolute," Fr. Marion explained. He declared that independence of the State from God and fellow man ends up in enslavement of individuals to the State, and discussions and wars are the ultimate result.

He said that each individual, and those at the helm of the state must strive for the common good according to the law of brotherly love and the sanctity of natural law.

The speaker projected his argument further when he pointed out that a state cloaked with Christianity, without Christianity for its very substance, is an empty shell. Fr. Marion propounded that a Christian who has held himself in bondage by the principles that are the foundation of new paganism in the world today, cannot be expected to play a constructive part in the post-war building up of any country.

"Our deeds in all walks of life cannot be without social repercussions, and therefore it is our obligation as Christians to work individually and concertedly in a worldwide effort for the cause of religious inspiration in the forums of the world, the marts of trade, the war plans, is Pte. A. V. Jones, 8922 76 avenue, who saved action in France, Belgium and Holland with the Calgary Highlanders. Overseas about a year, he was wounded twice.

Among Saturday night's arrivals was Pte. T. R. Chapin, Breton, Alta., who described the least lovely aspect of his service, as the action he saw at "Skunk Hollow," near San Vito in Italy. "That place is well named, it's well, soggy, and brother, it smells!" he remarked. He was overseas five years with the Loyal Edmonton Regiment.

Cpl. Dick Reynolds, Gunn, Alta., did a heavy job of handling ammunition for his division with the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps in Sicily and Italy. He was pleased with the good weather in Edmonton. His memories of Italy consist of cold weather, rain, and odors of mud.

Pte. W. C. Wills, of Goodfair, Alta., was overseas five years with the Loyal Edmonton Regiment. He was evacuated to hospitals in Tripoli and Algiers, North Africa. He lauded the medical treatment he received.

Pte. C. E. Othen of Tofteld was wearing the shoulder shields emblematic of Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army—two good conduct stripes pointing to four years good service, or in Army parlance, "undetected crime." Member of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, he was blown up by a mine one night in Italy when his gun carrier struck the enemy explosive. "I hit the ditch, but fast," he recalled.

Pte. H. A. Olenik, Flat Lake, Alta., was hurt in the blast of a Nazi "shoe mine." He served in Sicily and Italy with the Lanark and Renfrew Scottish, was evacuated to England for hospitalization. The soldier was home Sunday for the first time in two years.

Pte. W. Ladouceur of Styal, Alta., had really "had it" during his 26 months in England, Sicily and Italy. A Seaford Highlander, he was wounded in the arm in December, 1943, near Italy's Moro river. In May, 1944, he got it in the leg on the Hitler Line. Last October he lost an eye at the Savoy river. The former truck operator is hoping to return to that occupation shortly.

Another pre-war trucker, but one who isn't so sure about his post-

NEED CO-OPERATION

The speaker declared that social reconstruction can be achieved by co-operation of every member and group in society for the common good, that benefit which is sought when many men together unite with a common purpose. "The state is in a true sense a community, a unity seeking a common good. It exists and prospers in proportion as all the members of the community co-operate with each other for their mutual interests," he said.

He admitted that there are other lesser common goods which exist among smaller groups in society any company making, for example, form implements, was itself a community and it had a common good special to it and all its members. This common interest was the proper creation of the product which all together co-operates to make and also the profit and living which all members of this partnership made out of the product. Then the common goods of each company and each industry or profession themselves co-operate for the universal common good of the state.

"Without breaking down the framework of a constitution or of a state where justice prevails, we work out in our own democratic way, and by constitutional methods, something which will give our social orders the character of a public legal entity which could settle affairs of minor importance," he explained.

Summing up, Fr. Marion declared that the cause of all the evils in this world is lack of the spiritual element in individuals and in society as a whole, who have turned away from the Common Fatherhood of God over mankind. The remedy is a return to the Common Fatherhood of God, acknowledging and living according to the unwritten natural law first in our own private life and secondly in our social relationship to society. To bring about this return of the world back to Common Fatherhood of God, build up a social order that has the moral law based on God and conscience as its cornerstone of each individual separately and of concerted organized groups.

SANEST SOCIAL PLAN

The sanest plan for social reconstruction that will end strife between classes, unite mankind for the common good of all, and solve our post-war problems, is the plan for social reconstruction offered to the world by the Popes, the establishing of the "orders," with government, management and unions working harmoniously together through representatives chosen freely from each group to achieve social justice to all.

Finally, he said: "May I be permitted to add: the secularization of society, its isolation from religious inspiration is driving it into paganism. Paganism never remains merely indifferent to Christianity. For those who are not with Christ are against Him. Anti-Christ rises on the world scene, and we Christians must do battle. Our battle must not be merely defensive; it must be positively offensive."

"We must conquer the world for Christ and His social ideals, if the world is not to conquer us for Anti-Christ. This battle must be fought in the forums of the world, in the marts of trade, in our institutions of education, in the offices, in the factories, in the mines, in the fields of agriculture, at the election polls—in fact in every phase of social life—the layman strive individually and in concerted group action to effect a quick restoration of society, conquering it for Christ and His social ideals—our only hope of the future!"

During the question period that followed, there was a sharp clash between members of the audience, when it was proposed that other nations had already installed the solution offered, the particular example being Russia. It was declared that Russia was not a Christian nation.

PLAN NEXT FORUM

N. P. McGroarty, chairman of the Forum, announced that plans are already underway for the next forum during October and November. It is planned to bring in at least one noted speaker to appear at the sessions. Mr. McGroarty, reviewing this season's discussions, pointed out that attendance had been 40 percent greater than at previous meetings.

Churchill Braves Foe Shell-Fire To Cross Rhine

By ROBERT EUNSON

WITH THE U.S. 9TH ARMY, March 26.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill came within 50 yards of being hit by a German artillery shell yesterday as he inspected the blasted Weese bridge after a 15-minute visit to the 9th Army's bridgehead east of the Rhine.

While the prime minister was peering through the binoculars at the remains of battered Weese, from the shattered western end of the bridge, a German artillery shell landed 90 yards away. Others cracked into the Rhine.

11-Gen. William H. Simpson, commander of the 9th, insisted that the prime minister retire back out of artillery range.

"He finally lit that big cigar and walked away as if nothing had happened," the lieutenant added.

On the east bank, Mr. Churchill looked over into German-held land and compared Hitler's problems with his own in 1940. He said trying to defend a long river line in strength was the same as trying to guard a long coastline from invasion.

Churchill returned to England late today.

Army, Navy Vets Endorse Motions

At the regular monthly meeting of the Edmonton unit of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada held in the club rooms Sunday the membership endorsed a resolution asking that gratuities be made part of the estate of all service personnel and paid to next of kin on death of the servicemen regardless of whether or not dependent's allowances have been paid.

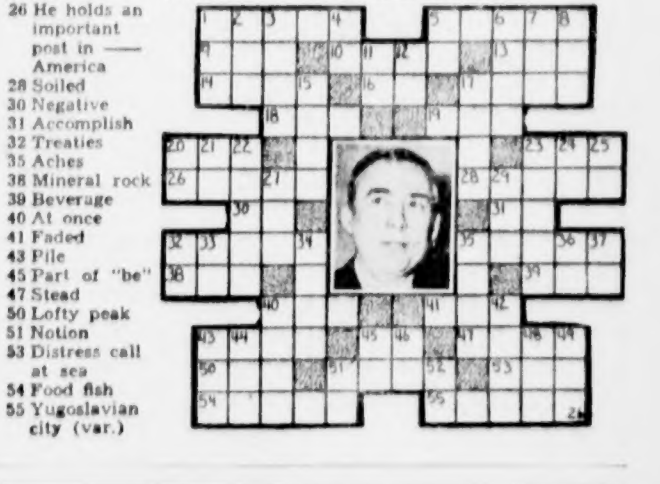

Another resolution calls for retirement of all veterans at the age of 35 on a scale similar to that now paid for service personnel undergoing vocational training.

Only by this method can serious unemployment be averted among veterans competing against each other for available jobs, it was stated.

President H. D. Lynn was in the chair.
